

INTERNET ↔ CITY

A PANEL DISCUSSION
EXPLORING RELATION-SHIPS BETWEEN THE INTERNET AND LONDON

FEATURING:
MATT BROWN, Editor of LONDONIST, an eclectic online city guide.

MARK EVES, creator of MYCOUNCIL iPhone app,
a tool to submit in situ
feedback and complaints to councils on the fly.

KIERAN LONG, prolific
London-based ARCHI-TECTURAL JOURNALIST
who streams his critique through a highly active twitter feed.

TIM HARDY, member of the SUKEY collective, developers of an ad hoc live mapping service for use by demonstrators during protests.

18.00,
Friday 6 May 2011

Slade Research Centre
University College London
Woburn Square
London WC1H 0AB

Free and open to the public. No booking required.

Organized by Rebecca Ross, Harvard Graduate School of Design and Ben Campkin, UCL Urban Laboratory as part of the Urban Lab's 2011
CitiesMethodologies exhibition and events programme.

Enquiries to Füsün Türet-ken, fusun.turetken.09@ ucl.ac.uk.

Photo of fiber optic cable
running through sewers extracted from "Plumbing Nightmares" blog.

